Predatory Behaviour

Child Sexual Abuse

Myth Busting

Due to popular demand Ineqe Group's Make Children Safer Insights - Offender Behaviour is returning.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Understand what behavioural analysis is and how to create a profile of a child sexual abuser and apply it to influence your working practice.
- Identify the myths relating to the perpetrators of child sexual abuse, the research that counters them and underpins a more intelligence led approach.
- Knowledge of a conceptual framework for understanding perpetrators of child sexual abuse.
- Apply their understanding of behavioural analysis to four real life case studies.

This exclusive event provides delegates with 6 hours certified credit toward their professional development accredited by the CPD Certification Service.

 Important Notice: This event uses clips of real perpetrators speaking about their experiences of abusing children. Some individuals may find this upsetting. Please consider this carefully before booking.

DR GRAHAM HILL

Graham is a Consultant Criminologist, former senior police officer and experienced Senior Investigating Officer (SIO). He was the founding Head of the Child Exploitation and Online Protection (CEOP) Centre's Behavioural Analysis Unit (BAU) and has been an advisor, behavioural analyst or SIO on some of the UK's most notorious child abuse/murder investigations.

His research interests include the behaviour of male and female child sex offenders, interviewing child sex offenders and non-familial child abduction/murder. His work focuses on how research can inform and enhance investigative practice.

The presenter will explain & demonstrate how the application of behavioural analysis techniques can assist safeguarding professionals to better understand the behaviour of child sexual abusers and protect children from future sexual abuse.
